You must not have a heart
Have nothing in your chest
To let it go for so long
And let this go so far
That it goes over your head

You could fool anyone
With your pensive smile
And you could live
In your lie for only a while

And I can only take so much
(From not so far away)
And I admit this could be love
(But love can always wait)
But it goes over your head

What does she have?
Can you let go?
Can you tell me what I am aching to know?
What does she have?
Can you let go?
(Can you let go?)
Can you tell me what I am aching to know?

You could ruin any mood
Just by saying what's on your mind
You could only tame his body
Never tame his mind

And I can only take so much
(From now so far away)
And I admit this could be love
(But how long did you wait?)
But it goes over your head

What does she have?
Can you let go?
Can you tell me what I am aching to know?
What does she have?
Can you let go?
(Can you let go?)

Can you tell me what I am aching to know?
What I am aching to know

If I'm reaching you you're not letting it show
Used up your space, now there's no room to grow
Too deep, can't breathe and you can't find the end
It's right in front of you
(But it goes over your head)
(Over your head)
Over your head

What does she have?
Can you let go?
Can you tell me what I am aching to know?
What does she have?
Can you let go?
(Can you let go?)
Can you tell me what I am aching to know?
What I am aching to know
(Can you tell me what I am aching to know?)

You must not have a heart
Have nothing in your chest
