Snow is falling all around her, the lights are shining bright tonight
It's easy to think that she is glowing, but nothing's ever feeling right
Remembering the fire burning, the presents underneath the tree
She's feeling alone with no one coming, home this Christmas Eve

But this is the year that we're changing
This is the moment we've waited
This is when we remember what we're made for
This is a time that we're hoping
Seasons coming and going
This is when we remember what we're made for

The sun is breaking through the darkness, we see it in the bursting light
We're coming to see that hope is moving, and things are gonna be alright
If we could only find a reason to let a broken heart believe
That all the worst is overridden, so open your eyes to see

This is the year that we're changing
This is the moment we've waited
This is when we remember what we're made for
This is a time that we're hoping
Seasons coming and going
This is when we remember what we're made for

There's a lot to think of, can be overwhelming
But this is where we come back to the start
Of all things created, it's extraordinary Love

This is the year that we're changing
This is the moment we've waited
This is when we remember what we're made for
This is a time that we're hoping

Seasons coming and going
This is when we remember what we're made for

What we're made for
What we're made for
