The lovers, they kiss
And slowly they turn
For drawing a breath
There is nothing but time

A thousand million years
Before we crash in the sun
And still we will be
Here in her arms

In the thick black night
We could lie in the grass
And gaze at the sky
Watch the satellites pass

A thousand million years
Before we crash in the sun
And still we will be
Here in her arms

And if we could float
[Incomprehensible] in our dreams
There's a city that waits
Under the sea

Days to pass living in the rose
The seeded land, slow and old
The scented air, heavy and warm
Whispers, touches

A thousand million years
Before we crash in the sun
And still we will be
Here in her arms, here in her arms
