There's a road, it's a rocky road, lined with sticks and stones, and

It's a road, where the thistle grows, and the freeway never goes,

But even though this road is long, everybodys welcome on, this rocky road, Now were all, doing the best we can, we hurt from head to toe, and

We fall, short of heavens plan, we stumble as we go, but even when

We all done wrong, everybodys welcome on, this rocky road, Casting stones, even though were all sinners, pointing fingers and

Calling out names, the rocky road, there aint noone among us,

Without blame, on the rocky road,
How can I, with this log in my eye, count your spots and scars, oh

Why, why should I even try, to put you behind bars, when I need

Your love to carry on, we gotta help each other on, this rocky road Casting stones, even though were all sinners, pointing fingers and

Calling out names, the rocky road, there aint noone among us,

Without blame, on the rocky road,
There's a road, it's a rocky road, lined with sticks and stones, and

It's a road, where the thistle grows, and the freeway never goes,

But even though this road is long, everybodys welcome on, this rocky road, Casting stones, even though were all sinners, pointing fingers and

Calling out names, the rocky road, there aint noone
among us,

Without blame, without blame,
Casting stones, even though were all sinners, pointing
fingers and

Calling out names, the rocky road, there aint noone
among us,

Without blame, on the rocky road...
