WAITING ON THE SUN

Words & Music by Nick Granato

It's been a long night, at times I wondered if I'd make it through,

It's been a hard fight, now I'm feeling somewhat broken,

And black and blue,

It wasn't easy, but somehow morning's just about to come!

And I'm still standing, just waiting on the sun!

I was reaching, but I couldn't find another hand to hold,

They kept preaching, but their words of love

Just seemed to leave me cold

Disillusioned, confused I couldn't tell which way was up

But I'm still standing, mm-mm, just waiting on the sun!

I dared the edge, thought I could fly

I fell head first and almost died

At some point I stopped asking why,

Cause I'm only flesh and blood

I've danced with devils in disguise

I've seen my super heroes cry

Traumatized, I should have turned and run!

But I'm still standing, mm, just waiting on the sun

In the darkness, oh I stumbled on myself along the way,

And I wandered, down the road to no where trying to escape

Desperation, watching all around me come undone!

But I'm still standing, I'm still standing, just waiting on the sun!

Oh I've lost my way, out in the dark

I wasn't sure that I could trust my heart

Now I find that I'm much stronger than I was

Cause I'm still standing, I'm still standing, just waiting on the sun!

I'm still standing, mm, waiting on the sun!
