"Hello World"

I get on stage for the first time
The curtains and the lights are down low
And know in a couple of hours
It be filled with people and I'm gonna have to steal the show

Ooooh

I waited all my life for this moment
And now that it is finally here
In the final seconds before I go up
I am suddenly struck by fear
Cause they say the higher up in the air
The bigger the change you fall
But then I rather be sorry
For something I tried, than to risk never flying at all.

Hello world, here I am
I'm gonna give it everything I can
Should I fall, I just get up again
And keep on trying
Should I fall, I just get up again
And keep on tryin'

The curtain opens and here I come
Out of the shadow into the light
Whatever happens in the next few minutes
Will matter for the rest of my life
And I realize this moment is never coming back
So I step on a second
Stair at the crow and make sure that I will never forget

Hello world, here I am
I'm gonna give it everything I can
Should I fall, I just get up again
And keep on trying
