It's been a while since you've been gone
And nothings ever been the same
Only in dreams will I be your embrace your Smiling face again
And i dont know if ill get through another night
Alone theres no one who make me feel the way you do

When will my longing for you end
When will the sun rise up again
The voices in my head got me asking over and over
When will this pain never subside
When will i be strong enough to fight
It's time to realize that your gone
And theres nothing I can do

Sometimes I close my eyes to see
The ways things use to be
It's all for me to let it all go
This way to end the story here
But I will always hold on to what we used to have Cause I, I know eventually my life will carry on

When will my longing for you end
When will the sun rise up again
The voices in my head got me asking over and over
When will this pain never subside
When will I be strong enough to fight
It's time to realize that your gone
And theres nothing I can do

When ever a light is barely comming through
The glammour of hope desipates when I think of you
Tell me where do I go
Tell me when will I know

When will my longing for you end
When will the sun rise up again
The voices in my head got me asking over and over
When will this pain never subside
When will I be strong enough to fight
It's time to realize that your gone
And theres nothing I can do

When will my longing for you end
When will the sun rise up again
The voices in my head got me asking over and over
When will this pain never subside
When will I be strong enough to fight
It's time to realize that your gone
And theres nothing I can do
