You're cruising down the highway and you're feeling gone
Turn on some statics, it's a rock and roll song
Nobody loves you and you're feeling tired
You try to come down but your electricity's wired.

Your hands start shaking as you roll up some weed
You have to forget all the things that you need
You think you're going somewhere you want to go
You're just trying make it with your rock and roll.

The people all around you give you nothing that you really need
So you smile and nod your head
And even talk although they're not your speed
You need an angel of mercy, standing by your side
You can't control the feelings that you want to hide
It's only gonna last just a couple of more songs
You wind up at the bottom when you don't belong.
You gotta boogie on, you gotta boogie on
You gotta carry on, you gotta sing a song, sing a song

really need
So you smile and nod your head
And even talk although they're not your speed
You need an angel of mercy, standing by your side
You can't control the feelings that you want to hide
It's only gonna last just a couple of more songs
You wind up at the bottom when you don't belong.
You gotta boogie on, you gotta boogie on
You gotta carry on, you gotta sing a song
You gotta boogie on, you gotta boogie on
You gotta carry on, you gotta sing a song, sing a song
Boogie on, boogie on, carry on, sing a song
Boogie on, boogie on, carry on, sing a song.
