everything falls apart.

you took this rose and stuck the thorns in my heart.
as the blood pours out onto your valentine my heart grows hollow as you embrace a new love.
and what we were fell apart on the day when love was supposed to start.
tears cant wash away the pain so i treasure sleep and dreams are all i have to escape reality.
i keep you in my mind as time ticks by wishing every minute your heart will crack and finally shatter when you realize the love you took for granted.
