Aiming at your vein needs being someone you can't be becoming something you're not catching your feet in your fears trying to spread your broken wings trying to take off contemplating your failure hanging yourself at dawn cause tomorrow won't ever let you in there's no reward for your lifelong bleeding did you deserve all these years of suffering everything's lost there is no turning back what did you live for hope did finally burn you'll never fit this life what will you die for you just don't want to know pull the pin out of your brain ducking your head is your due as a pain addict you were born happy to quit this life obscene.
