Why do you say what you say?
Why do you do what you do?
I said that things would never be the same
So don't open your door and scream out my name
I said that things would never be the same
So don't open your door and scream out my name

You said your heart belonged to me
I hope you can live without it when you leave
You said that we'd be together forever
At least time was always on my side

I said that things would never be the same
So don't open your door and scream out my name
I said that things would never be the same
So don't open your door and scream out my name

You always get away
You always get away with everything
That's because you've got a pretty face
And those paralyzing blue eyes
Take this picture in memory of me
