"They broke an old tradition, because the new millennium rearranged a celebration they all enjoyed, yet there's a costume contest Who'd draw the ace this christmasquerade remained mysterious best disguise would be announced when the clock strikes twelve and then dis-masque at midnight. Roll out the blood-red carpet, champagne and cheers and fireworks, very soon we reach the climax, count-down begins drum-roll! And the winner is... that man disguised as the Devil himself

The red horn-clad demon complete with tail and cloven hoof devil-man you're so authentic, all shouted
