You left me here to die
I look out to the sun as it descends behind this dead city
Feel the heat on my face, see the broken frames as they swell behind my eyes
I hate these tears of freedom
I searched for a new name, this place was never mine
Yet still it remains but it's just not the same
In here you never left me...
In my darkest hours I felt the end of serenity
Remember the hope you gave me
I move towards the light
I tried to look up
My only company is walls
You've taken every dream
Now it's starting again, I swear the trust will end
She's the only one that could save me
I know your concrete heaven
A prison for my mind without a star in sight
Although it dulls the pain
I'm still eaten by flies
In here you never left me...
In my darkest hours I felt the end of serenity
Remember the hope you gave me
I move towards the light
I choked down the pills with Jesus by my side
Now I will become my own worst enemy before the end What if I never wake up from this nightmare I've created in my head
How did these little hands get so cold
How did they get so cold
When I die can I follow you... everywhere
You can't follow me into my head but I can keep you here as long as I want
This place was safe until you came
In here no one will leave me again but I keep reliving the worst of the moments
Killing me slowly, it keeps on repeating over again
Over again
