Love is life without regrets, love is life without regrets Love is without regrets, live life with no regrets A thousand years a distal suffering, suffering buildings crumble into ash of art The tongue across your stomach, we lie alone in our dying ashes
You are more to me than life itself, the state of beauty I'll never have Our dreams together are senseless, we will die alone in our embrace
A thousand years, we will suffer, I will never have you & as the streets lay, wet your soul will strive You search for insult in compassion (this burning lasts)
You search for insult in everything in our dying ashes Sin for the saint, I will never have you A thousand years, a distal suffering (our noble scars) forever away (I will never have you) Destined to extinguish (& your noble scars)
Death is strength, lost in this embrace in our dying ashes, a thousand years I will never have you You search for insult in compassion & die with the sick Silent assault (distal suffering) of the crypts forever away & now destined to extinguish Searching for something, destined to extinguish, love is life without regret Buildings crumble into ash of art, there is nothing here for us
Pushing for a state that we can't possibly manage, pushing for something we can't have We will die in our embrace & forever lay in our dying ashes
