You're all alone Storms they always seem to push their way around Leave you with nothing I hope they turn you inside out

Nobody's home I left a lot of things unchanged since you've been gone And I've gotta warn you I'm not exactly what you thought

They're coming for you They're gonna turn you inside out It's been so long The shorter days seem like a dream that I forgot Left me with something Made me remember what I lost

You better hide it to yourself You better move to the beat The machines They don't care what songs you sing For the weak and the sick They can't get over it.

You better hide it to yourself You better move to the beat The machines They don't care what songs you sing For the weak and the sick They can't get over it On the street, the police They don't care what life you lead For the scene and the kids They can't get over it
