

Crucified

"A Stranger Moment"

Visit "A Stranger Moment" on MotoLyrics.com

The wind has wrenched all hands away
And ripped and torn the sail
But the sea grows somewhat calmer
As storms ply against the hull

Still I hope that time has something left
To show that I was here
Before sinking into oceans
Of blurred forgotten years

My intention is a stranger moment
Apart from the world we share
And all of our enchanted musings
Fell lost between the here
And the there

The lights upon the farthest plain
Ascending with the storms
Where children and dreamers separate
And a gulf within us forms

And I hope when they replay the verse
Our tongues fell deep to speak
The words are less confusing
And the rhythm not so weak

But my intention is a stranger moment
Apart from the world we share
And all our hopes of happiness
Survive, between the here
And the there

Visit Crucified page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.