"Sometimes our lives descend, insnared as storms upon the soul and rains may strike dividing to sever what was whole but though your limbs feel torn and twisted and your memories turn cold take heart, for I am with you still and will catch you should you fall Eyes to Heaven
Lost and searching for the truth
The words to mend your broken heart can only come from you
Eyes to Heaven
building secrets from your pain a virtue lost in innocence is lost here all the same a beautiful dreamer locked in reticence in a tower of your soul what lies so deep and undisturbed fears torment in the world lightning flashes warning to whispers in the rain the fire climbing upwards your fortress is in flame

Eyes to Heaven
must come from inside you Eyes to Heaven
in prayers to end the suffering heard by a soldier's saint."
