With every minute passing by I'm spending my life
One coin at a time
What have I done, what can I give
One life I own, one life to live
What will be said when I am gone
He kept his life, shared with no one now
I find myself questioning my thoughts and dreams, hopes and schemes
Now I've come to realize I'm not alright
There's more to life spending on me
Myself, and I can't help but feel I've wasted time
No time for other just myself
Wonder how many coins are left Can't seem to answer the question why I should live instead of die
I feel so scared on my own
Wish I had someone to lead me on to light up the way
Show me the road
Give me the strength
Make me bold spending on me myself
And I can't help but feel I've wasted time
