I woke up from a dream
Could not get back to sleep
WouldnÂ't open my eyes cause
I knew you werenÂ't there next to me

You came and held me in your arms
And I tried so hard to cry
But when the tears didnÂ't come
You sang me a sweet lullaby

And I will carry you home
To the place where you belong
And you will sleep your way from here
And know that I am here with you
Tonight

Pretending everythingÂ's alright
Feeling guilty when I lie
But I guess you still know when
IÂ'm hiding behind my smile

And when it hurts so much inside
And IÂ'm drowning in my fear
And IÂ'm scared and IÂ'm cold and alone
I can still hear
You singing

I will carry you home
To the place where you belong
And you will sleep your way from here
And know that I am here with you

Tonight
You hold me close and take my hand
And never fall away
Never fall away
And I might bring you down
To take a walk with broken hearts
And I can sing a song of pain
And paint the pattern of the fire
In my soul into a picture
That illustrates the way that I have

Always felt in truth
But never had the words to say

I woke up from a dream
Could not get back to sleep
Until I opened my eyes
And you were right there next to me

So I held you in my arms
And as I closed my tired eyes
I suddenly realized
WeÂ're both dreamers
