She whispers her apologies
Her eyes shining stars in the sky
Then turning like mist, she's gone again
I don't understand why

And now that it's broken and the last facade is burned
How do I find my balance when the Earth won't turn

You can try to deny it
What a dreamer like me might feel
You can say it's all in my head
But I know that it's real

I don't remember the words that we said
All I can focus on is the infinite death that divides
Us now instead
I don't remember the words that we said
All I can think about is the infinite death that
Divides us here instead

And now that it's broken and the last facade is burned
How do I find my balance when the Earth won't turn

I don't remember the words that we said
All I can focus on is the infinite death that divides
Us now instead
I don't remember the words that we said
All I can think about is the infinite death that
Divides us here instead
I don't remember the words that we said
All I can think about is the infinite death that
Divides us here instead
