

Ominous Grief

"Awakened By Twilight's Funeral"

Visit "Awakened By Twilight's Funeral" on MotoLyrics.com

I wonder when they will let me go
But anyway they will always be there, so will death
Under my eyelids my eyes begin to dart and fro
Awakening will strike my lonely soul, so will their wrath

Dark morning, hooded sunrise
Come caress me, for it's still midnight in the grave
Sun shines bright, I lie in the dark
Centuries have passed, longing for the sunlight

I am hopeless
In a silent coffin I await for the dawn
I am lonely
In a silent coffin I await for the dawn

Suddenly the coffin closes in around me
I feel darkness surround my entity
Haven't even seen the bright morning rise
The coffin is closing around me

I am lying twisted in this gloomy prison cell
In the morning's cold my naked body fear
I am lying twisted in this gloomy prison cell
In the morning's cold my naked body fear

The bell will start to chime again soon
Telling us all here arrives the doom
The infernal flames will heat my coffin
And now their singing echoes in my grave

Chiming the bell when the twilight hymns are said aloud
Lake of flames calls to those buried in this unholy ground
Damnation is among us, in the darkness it seems to be creeping
Awakened from my sombre sleep into eternal years of suffering

Visit Ominous Grief page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.

