Ungentle exhumation
Must be thorough, remove it all Catalogue every part,
Then rape them and eat them How dare them bury what should be mine
My dead companions on which I dine Penetrate the dead hole Please, O lord, just let it smell and let mankind's puniverse be befouled just for me My graveside manner lacks no finesse
These ravaged bodies betray no distress
As I tear apart the dead things I annoint them with my seed and gain new insights into death with their consumption
Yet I wonder,
What if I were something dead?
Somewhere there's a graveyard of ghouls with a massive headstone that waits just for me;
Maybe someday
Someone will come
