once there was a time when no man had ever touched the earth all that has been built was balanced and so was man's birth

come with me
and you'll see

you've been put here for a reason use your powers well keep respect for all
because on my surface you will dwell

when the morning comes we find our way in life her powers make the trees look green

the sun will laugh to flowers in the sand I came through
another night...

your disgrace for me
has brought up shame on my behalf what we've seen so far feels like you're tearing up my scars

on my recall I've shown you all
you careless fools
I make the rules

another night...
