I see I finally got inside your mind.
Bounced off the sides a couple hundred times.
That's when I realized the big empty space Inside I'd find
Thought there be more in store.
It seems air is all I ever find.
I'm so surprised you don't just float away.
Laugh when ever I hear you say.
Nothing is on my mind.
(Repeat)
That million mile stare.
That hundred mile glare.
I'm knocking at your door.
Home but you're not there.
Well I see you smiling but do you really care.
Well I see you smiling but do you really care.
Well I see you smiling but do you really care.
So surprised you don't just float away.
Laugh when ever I hear you say.
Nothing nothing can it be is on your mind.
So just don't float away.
