You looked at me as you walked in the room
Like the Red Sea, you split me open
Somehow I knew these wings were stolen
All you did was save my life

Tried to run but I couldn't move
Well, I paid for these concrete shoes
But like a singer that sings the blues
You saw hope in the hopeless

I'm not dyin', all you did was save my life
Pulled me out of that flat line
Put the heartbeat back inside

I'm not dyin', all you did was get me through
I owe every breathe to you
Heart and soul unparalyzed
All you did was save my life, save my life

I'm not for sale but I've been sold
The more I hear the less I know
And the lies are swallowed whole
And their insignificance

The story's been told a million times
But it's different when it's your life
I won the lottery tonight
The lottery tonight

I'm not dyin', all you did was save my life
Pulled me out of that flat line
Put the heartbeat back inside

I'm not dyin', all you did was get me through
I owe every breathe to you
Heart and soul unparalyzed
All you did was save my life, save my life

I started to come around
The dogs are backin' down
I'm not afraid to see
The devil's gone underground

This tightropes been cut down
And I can finally breathe

You looked at me as you walked in the room
Like the Red Sea, you split me open
Somehow I knew these wings were stolen

I'm not dyin', all you did was save my life
Pulled me out of that flat line
Put the heartbeat back inside

I'm not dyin', all you did was get me through
I owe every breathe to you
Heart and soul unparalyzed
All you did was save my life, save my life

Put the heart beat back inside
All you did was save my life
Put the heart beat back inside
All you did was save my life
