Take all your pills and divide them by color and size Then take all your problems and advise them that every thing's fine Since you ran away you've been beating your habits to death
And if you were to stay would you feed them this white happiness

Nobody wants to harm you when you're outside
But it's hard to believe when everyone's killing time
But somebody knows that you're just not laughing,
you're not laughing

Take all your pills and divide them by number and might Then take all your problems chastise them because every thing's nice Since you've ran away you've been beating those ladders instead But if you were to stay would you feed them with violence

And nobody wants to harm you when you're outside
But it's hard to believe when everyone's killing time
But somebody knows that you're just not laughing,
you're not laughing

You're not laughing
You're not laughing
You're not laughing
You're not, not, not

Nobody wants to harm you when you're outside
But it's hard to believe when everyone's killing time
But somebody knows that you're just not laughing,
you're not laughing
You're not laughing, you're not laughing
