

Our Lady Peace "Window Seat"

I can feel the knives in my back, in my sides,
As my body slowly fades,
Can you reach into time,
Bring me back here alive,
Send the ocean's tides astray,
One by one we fall asleep like passengers in window
seats,
I know I should go but I stay,
One by one we float away like accidents and
castaways,
I know I should go but I stay, I stay.
I can hear the sounds,
As the wheels hit the ground,
My bones begin to break, my bones begin to break.
One by one we fall asleep like passengers in window
seats,
I know I should go but I stay,
One by one we float away like accidents and
castaways,
I know I should go but I stay, I stay.
