[Voice probably taken from a television documentary.

"Some historians and anthropologists think people
Who claimed to be possessed may have been drugged
However, the drugging was accidental
The theory suggests they may have eaten
Moldy rye grain which contained an ergot
This poisonous substance can cause hallucinations
Similar to those brought on by LSD

During the middle ages a similar witch hunt broke out in Europe
It is thought that ergot poison was to blame then, too
Whatever the cause, whether it was an adolescent craving for attention
Or the accidental ingestion of a psychedelic substance,
The results were terrifying"
