Hundred miles away, memories stay
That covered bridge where our names are still engraved
You turned to go; I turned to leave
Then you turned to go, and I turned to leaves
In the cool shade of a sycamore tree,
I paint a perfect portrait of how it used to be
When Iâ€™m alone my mind it slows
You can paint a smiling face on a scarecrow...

But I know myself, I canâ€™t be like that
I canâ€™t help myself, I will always cry
Keep my frown in a jar on a shelf
Put on my favorite smile
So far away, in my high state...

In my head, itâ€™s all I want to think about
But I stop instead, I got to learn to live without Itâ€™ll be easier in the end...
When I thought I lost another I can learn to lose a friend

But I know myself, I canâ€™t be like that
I canâ€™t help myself, I will always cry
Keep my frown in a jar on a shelf
Put on my favorite smile
So far away, in my high state...

Under a stone in the back, Iâ€™ve grown a flower for you,
dear
A flower thatâ€™s so beautiful it may now be flying up here
I water it every day and I rip out every weed
How could I just let it wilt, but it will for just a seed

But I know myself, I canâ€™t be like that
I canâ€™t help myself, I will always cry
Keep my frown in a jar on a shelf
Put on my favorite smile
So far away, in my high state...
