All my life I've wanted more
To live my life with someone I belonged with
In my head I needed a light
To help find the means that could never justify a way
But as it just seems to work out now
Maybe I've been blind

Could it be haunting me
As if it were written in the street
A hand to hold when it was dark
Or when my life would fall apart
When I'd awake
When I would dream
When my world is half asleep
Could it be that all along
You were with my for the long haul

Break me off & cut me down
If the cynic in me could only see
What I can see now
Guess my heart just needed you
To brave the storm & help me finally see the truth in life
But now I might just breathe a little easier tonight
Don't let me down

Could it be haunting me
As if it were written in the street
A hand to hold when it was dark
Or when my life would fall apart
When I'd awake
When I would dream
When my world is half asleep
Could it be that all along
You were with my for the long haul

And I never gave a nothing about
Thinkin' about the way I live
But I thought about turning around
Thinking I gave all my heart could give
Was falling so hard because of loneliness

But now your heart melds with mine

Could it be haunting me
As if it were written in the street
A hand to hold when it was dark
Or when my life would fall apart
When I'd awake
When I would dream
When my world is half asleep
Could it be that all along
You were with my for the long haul

With me for the long haul
With me for the long road
With me for the long road ahead
