There you are caught red handed
With another man you were planning
To stay out all night
I'm sure your more than satisfied
I'm tired of being reprimanded
I've never held any kind of standing against everyone else
You've been putting me on the shelf

I should've known that there's no trusting you any more
I'm sure that you've been past all round this town

I know you never loved me back
But that's alright
I'm waiting here for something else to come
To come undone
I know that you never loved me back
But that's alright
I'm waiting here

Something told me to be less clever
The less I know you about you's better
Than finding all this all out
And going another round
And when all this madness is all over
You'll destroy another lover
I gave this out to you
And you broke it in two

I should've known that there's no trusting you any more
I'm should all my friends have had a turn by now

I know you never loved me back
But that's alright
I'm waiting here for something else to come
To come undone
I know that you never loved me back
But that's alright
I'm waiting here

Well it hurt me to be losing my soul
And it feels just like burnt up...

It feels just like burnt up...
And it hurts me right straight down to my bones
And it feels just like burnt up

I know you never loved me...
I know you never loved me...
I know you never loved me back
But that's alright
I'm waiting here for something else to come
To come undone
I know that you never loved me back
But that's alright
I'm waiting here

I know you never loved me back
But that's alright
I'm waiting here for something else to come
To come undone
I know that you never loved me back
