Please close your eyes
'Cause I don't want to face the road
Or impose, disguise
Memories I couldn't run through

Spin wheel, you're lit
You've got everything you ever wanted and I can't help but notice that you're still here
The fire started on the low ground, darling

Lay in your lap
I can see the red light glowing through the windscreen
And water where it rained harder
Now the clouds are stunning

You left your whole heart under the bench where we were sat today
Breaking china and the forest through the window

Spin wheel, you're lit
You've got everything you ever wanted
And I can't help but notice that you're still here
The fire started on the low ground, darling

And ride through the wind
Ride faster when you hear them singing
With the ear pitch and high line
Waiting for a conversation on the low ground darling

And lay in your lap
You've got everything you ever wanted
And I can't help but notice that
The fire ended in November, darling
