you're so predictable when you show up in the morning you look terrible, but its just what i expected your eyes are closed, but I know that you're listening so i'll keep this short so I know you don't ignore me 'cause my times spent counting your lies and I regret every second I tried to keep your heart stable when your minds a mess again your heart stable time and time again.

so give it up give it up
it's never enough

you never listen to anyone you still say that you're learning i've learned to ignore
you
and now you're passed out and on the floor
you still say that you're learning i've learned to ignore
you

don't say anything, anything you need these chemicals, 'cause without them you're a lie and this is getting old, I can't have this in my life keep your heart stable when your minds a mess again your heart stable time and time again.

it's never enough

you
you

so give it up. it's never enough

you
you
