"Four Horses"

Four horses pull a carriage through an empty street
And though the day is cold and still
They are not breathing
They make no sound at all
As easily as water finds it's way to ground
They bleed into the brick and are gone

And I have seen what I have seen as I fall
Like a whisper in the dome of Saint Paul
And the drowning man's forgot what he's called
But he illuminates our town for us all
Yeah, yeah, yeah

So walk up the narrow staircase from the balcony
And at the top go out and grip the golden railing
The view from up here really takes your breath away
And you step out of your skin and you're gone

And I have seen what I have seen as I fall
Like a whisper in the dome of Saint Paul
And the drowning man's forgot what he's called
But he illuminates our town

So follow me down to the riverside honey
We can pack our bags and take all our money
We can fly away, we can fly away
Take me down to the railway tracks
We can cross a bridge where the sun sets
Baby we can fly away, we can fly away

Take me down, take me down
Fly away, fly away
Take me down, take me down
Fly away, fly away (yeah)

And though the day is cold and still
And there's no reason
To make a sound at all
As easily as water finds it's way to ground

And I have seen what I have seen as I fall

Like a whisper in the dome of Saint Paul
And the drowning man's forgot what he's called
But he illuminates our town

(Take me down, take me down)
And I have seen what I have seen as I fall
(Fly away, Fly away)
Like a whisper in the dome of Saint Paul
(Take me down, take me down)
And the drowning man's forgot what he's called
(Fly away, Fly away)
But he illuminates our town for us all
