

Pat Mcgee

"Can't Miss What You Never Had"

Visit "Can't Miss What You Never Had" on MotoLyrics.com

I went out walking and I caught myself talking To a man whod been knocking around bardos door
So I come home thinking that I ought not be missing
All those things that you're sending, well they aint nothing new to me

So Im sitting here thinking about all that he's saying And Im sure that you're wishing that I'd come around they way
But the bridges that you burned before, sliding out that back door
And the things that you said were nothing new to me

You can't miss what you never had (x4)

When I was out walking, I found myself thinking on what He was preaching seemed all fine to me.
But all those bridges that you're burning, are the ones you'll be wanting
But they wont hear you talking, it's nothing new to me

You can't miss what you never had

Well, I came back from walking, still found myself talking to that man Hes still knocking around bardos door
The things that he said before and all that you're wishing for Its easy to have been bought, still nothing new to me

When I came home from thinking about all that you're saying Those things that you're seeking, you better look another way Cause those bridges that you burned before, and things that you're hoping for Now they're haunting on your back door, it's nothing new to me

Visit Pat Mcgee page on MotoLyrics.com, to get more lyrics and videos.

---

