Putrefactive bacteria in colon
Decomposition of red corpuscles - haemolysis
Organ's post mortem turbidity
Decaying intestinal contents

Greenish hue of skin
Hydrogen sulphide
Gases extend viscera
Flatulence of abdomen

Stomachic contents in gullet and about mouth
Catheters pervaded with pigment
Epidermis peel off
Corium is damp

Putrid emphysema in hypodermic tissue, pleura,
Gastric mucous membrane and bowels
Fluid from decomposing ulcers reeks
Putrefactive liquids form blisters

Hair and nails slowly fall off
Swollen scrotum and penis

Methane draws urine
Gaping sutures of cranial cavity

Thorax contains fluids with sulphaemoglobinum
Liquefiable fat reduced to fatty acids

Muscles pervaded with suppurating centres
Ribs are albescent
Stomach is sunken
Yawning facial cavities

Eyes are imperceptible
Denudation of teeth

Wrinkling skin
Bones are desiccated
Eroded gristles
Along the spine rot'

Dry remains of entrails
Cadaverous and putrid stench
Carcass disintegrated entirely
Finished putrefaction and decay.
