If I were a car crash
Would you look at me then?
What's so attractive about a tragedy?
Well there's nothing so tragic as what might have been.
It is really easier to run than just believe?
So you're lost behind the wheel
Searching with your eyes for the unseen
Come on and let go
Let me drive it home
You wanted set free
But all you are is alone

Come on and let go
Let me drive it home
Redemption was the point
When I rolled away the stone
Let me drive it home

Raindrops big as Texas
Colliding with the highway
Just on the desperate side of Abilene
So you pull off to the shoulder
To let the storm blow over
And there you are alone with your pride
And a vacant passenger seat
And if this is all there is
Then hope is just a liar and a thief

Come on and let go
Let me drive it home
You wanted set free
But all you are is alone
Come on and let go
Let me drive it home

Redemption was the point
When I rolled away the stone
But I think you missed a turn
So before you crash and burn
Let me drive it home
Midnight on the road to find yourself

And you've been stuck in traffic since you left
Just a one way ride
To another hopeless night
But I think I see an exit up ahead
