CHAMELEON

music and lyrics by Jonathan Dorsey

Well you're an old chameleon
You change your face to fit the situation
Never in one place it seems you change
So you don't risk a confrontation
Try and try, it's not enough
Start to run when things get rough
Reality becomes your own creation

But it's too easy to be What everyone wants you to be
And what have you got in the end
A total stranger's calling you friend...Chameleon!

Slithering away into the night
You try to hide those cuts and bruises
But never close yourself from any option
Every person has their uses
Always wear the proper face
Every image in it's place
Re-invent the truth if it confuses

And what if someone ever gets into your soul
What if someone sees inside
And what if someone ever makes you lose control
Just what the hell have you got to hide
