"Four Highways"

You didn't say which way you were going
You only said that you were gone
You didn't say where you just vanished in thin air
Now you won't answer your telephone
So I'm sitting at this crossroad
In the middle of the night
Did you go back, did you move forward
Did you turn left, did you turn right

Four highways lead in four different directions
North South East West, what am I gonna do
Three of them will take me to the wrong destination
Four highways, which one leads to you

Did you go north to your family
Seeking shelter in the arms of home
Did you go west to some frontier town
Change your name and live unknown

Did you go east into the city
Hold up in some big hotel
Did you go south to the ocean
Let the waves erase your footprints
And wash away your trail
