HOME AGAIN

music and lyrics by Mike Hudson

Stranger in this town
Stranded like a shipwrecked caravan
Walks a million miles
Thinking all the while what a day it's been Lost in dissension
He carries his invention to the promised land
If he had to do it over
He would do it over and over again

(Well) It's some consolation
Pulling into the station
With a new declaration
For a brand new nation
(And we go) Home Again
Home Again
Home Again

There's a message on the wire
It's rushing through the air to you again
From the flame into the fire
From here to everywhere it's ever been There's danger on the rise
Wearing the disguise of a normal day
Someone's in the hall banging on the wall
In a desperate way

Silhouette ghosts haunt the past
Like shadows on reflecting glass
And someone out there always staring in...
