"Vaporized"

You listen to the silence that's dripping from their eyes
And everything that you've known has been vaporized
They speak to you in riddles, communicate in lies
And everything that you've known has been vaporized

The time has come to take tomorrow by the reigns You trade a bright new future for silhouette dreams and capital gains

You take a stone from the river to change the shape of the sky
And everything that you've known has been vaporized
The world slips through your fingers like the sands of time
And everything that you've known has been vaporized

The future comes in a flavor that has been synthesized
And everything that you've known has been vaporized
