Understand she's a force of nature Contraband hiding deep inside her soul Exercising her will to lose control she lets go

A common man he don't stand a chance no Wonderland pulling Alice in the hole no way to save someone who wont take the rope and just lets go

One man stands the edge of the ocean a beacon on dry land eyes upon the horizon
in the dark before the dawn hurricane has the trade winds blowing A gale force shaking windows in the storm shipwrecked on a rock that he calls home With one light on

Somewhere there's a siren singing
A song only he hears All the strength you might think would disappear resolving one man stands alone awaiting for her to come home
Eyes upon the horizon
in the dark before the darkness leaves the dawn

Makes me ache
Makes me shake
Is it so wrong to think that Love can keep us safe?

Last I saw he was out there waiting a silhouette in the black light full moon glow in the sand there he stands upon the shore Forevermore

somewhere there's a siren singing
A song only he hears
All the strength that you might think would disappear, resolving

eyes are closed, you cannot know but his heart don't seem to roam...
Roam...
Roam...
