Behind her eyes there's curtains and they are closed to hide the flames remains

She knows there future's burning but she can smile just the same

And though her mood is fine today
There's a fear they'll soon be parting ways

Standing like a statue a chin of stone a heart of clay

hey

And though he's too big a man to say
there's a fear they'll soon be parting ways

Drifting away... Drifting away... Drifting away... Drifting away... Drifting away...
away... Drifting away...
