I built a wall
As tall as a scyscraper
Keeping you away
From my heart so I can pretend
That you don't exist
But it's so hard to resist

When all she wanted was heaven
To help her find a way to live today
She looked up at the sky for an angel
She was caught in the wind
Crumbling and suffering within

I strapped myself
To the bottom of the ocean
Watching you from below
As you yelled my name
And said "Why did you go? Was it something I said?"
And I answered "No, precious I just have to go"

And all she wanted was heaven
To help her find a way to live today

She looked up at the sky for an angel
She was caught in the wind
Crumbling and suffering within

And I gave up on you too soon
Now you're somewhere under the moon
Alone and scared in the night (??)
But I'm no where no where in site
Your letters read to me so easily
Now I understand

You said, All I need was someone who could help my find my way through this day
I looked up at the sky for an angel caught in the wind crumbling and suffering

All I needed is someone who can help me find my way through this day
All I needed is an angel

Who can help me find my way
