4AM and I'm still here
What is left after the room clears?
I feel I'm losing everything that I knew

And if I should leave you alone
The seasons change
And I get blown to the ground

5AM and I'm still here
What is left after the cheap beer?
Flows through my veins
After you leave
After you leave

And if I should leave you alone
The seasons change
And I get blown to the ground
And when I call you on the phone
I dream about the parking lot at home

We used to spend our days
But now they've torched the buildings
And the corner stores away
In our hearts there will always be a void
And you know that

And if I should leave you alone
The seasons change
And I get blown to the ground
And when I call you on the phone
I dream, yeah I dream
About the parking lot at home
