You live in a world of excess
Where more is more and less is much less
A day without fame is a waste
And a question of need is a question of taste
You're so flamboyant
The way you look
It gets you so much attention
Your sole employment
Is getting more
You want police intervention
You're so flamboyant
The way you live
You really care that they stare
And the press deployment
Is always there
It's what you do for enjoyment
You live in a time of decay
When the worth of a man
Is how much he can play
Every day
All the public must know
Where you are, what you do
'cause your life is a show and
You're so flamboyant
The way you live
And it's not even demeaning
You're so flamboyant
It's like a drug
You use to give your life meaning
You're so flamboyant
The way you look
It gets you so much attention
Your sole employment
Is getting more
You want police intervention
Every actor needs an audience
Every action is a performance
It all takes courage
You know it
Just crossing the street
Well, it's almost heroic
You're so flamboyant...

There you are at another preview
In a pose the artist and you
To look so loud
May be considered tacky
Collectors wear black clothes by Issey Miyake
You're so flamboyant
The way you look
You're so flamboyant
The way you live
You really care that they stare

You're so flamboyant
You're so flamboyant
