In the cold, coldest of nights
The fire I light, to warm my bones
Oh love, had enough, of the dreadful cold
And from the flames, appears Salome

I stand before her amazed
As she dances and demands
The head of john the baptist on a plate

In the morning, shaken and disturbed
From under soft white fur

I see the dust in the morning light ???????
And by the telly appears Salome

I sit up amazed
As she dances and demands
The head of ??????? on a plate
Oh, It's Salome
Oh, It's Salome
