I already know her
Just got to show her
I already know her

I, I got to see her
Want to feel her
I already know her

I just met her today
I just met her today
I just met her today and I already know her

She's cool in the summer
What can I say, yeah
I already know her

She's well aware with a natural faith
Talking to someone she'll peer into their face
And when she walks, she glides all around the place
Always moving at her own pace
Smiles with a charm that would melt a criminal
Never says half empty, always says half full
Got a constitution that makes her stand tall
Even chief executives would bow to her gall

Tender in the moment when she feels so
Her touch is so warm it sets off a glow
She hasn't got an ego 'cause it gets in the way
Prepared to let somebody go on and have their say
Though not over-friendly, you know just where you stand
And if you really need it, she'd lend a hand
Heart full of goodness as anyone can be
But she doesn't waste it unrealistically
