I've been taking you for granted
Finally I sympathize
How do you put up with a guy like me?
How can you make that compromise?

When was the last time that I called you?
Just to say you're on my mind
That work is tough but when I'm thinking of you
It's not very hard to pass the time

You should know your smile is perfect
And you're always on my mind
That your dreams are not forgotten
And I'm mixing yours with mine

When you're so alone
You can count on me and how much better it will be

Sometimes you talk and though I'm listening
I don't speak or nod my head
There's just silence and a distance there instead
You feel numb but feel somehow you deserve it

Know your smile is perfect
And you're always on my mind
That your dreams are not forgotten
And I'm mixing yours with mine

When you're so alone
You can count on me and how much better it will be

I'm surprised
That you could find something in me
Something worth all of the anxiety

In you I've found something I can't live without
Let me change your point of view
I'll do anything to keep you

Seems like you've always been cheated
Your family, your friends, your job

You deserve the things thought only in your dreams
And that's what I will give to you

You should know your smile is perfect
And you're always on my mind
That your dreams are not forgotten
And I'm mixing yours with mine

When you're so alone
You can count on me and how much better it can be

Don't lose hope
It will be ok
Things get better today
