And so...it's come to this, wrought with the anguish.
Consumed by spite, morphing towards what I despise.
And yet, things continue on, construe my spite to suit me. I see the world through hardened eyes, set free
my past,
(for) tomorrow never dies. And so, I reach towards hope once more and yesterday fades away, and I set myself free...again.

Fall down, rise again. Cast shame, she'd this skin.
Enlighten me with the power to succeed, help me wash
away the impurities That shame me. True strength comes from the empowerment of self fulfillment, and self fulfillment is only achieved by Those who she'd bear shame.
